So the Heidenfeld is down to the wire. 3 games left and the final battle lines to be decided.

Rathmines B are in pole position with a two point cushion over Blanchardstown with Elm Mount and Ballinasloe giving chase. Blanchardstown have strengthened their team with a new 2070 player. In the football parlance they made good use of the January transfer window.

Rathmines B have the easier finish with games against Celbridge Lucan and Phibsboro, while Blanchardstown have to play Inchicore A, Ballinasloe and Celbridge

Ballinasloe have to play Elm Mount as well so they will probably kill each other's chance of catching the top two. As both Ballinasloe and Elm Mount are weaker on the lower boards I think for this year the top two teams should hold on to the promotion spots.

Inchicore B have a mountain to climb if they are to avoid relegation and Lucan would be battling hard to stay up but they have to play Rathmines C and Rathmines B. If Rathmines manage to keep three teams up they should see team selection problems ease next year as they will have one team in the Armstrong. Rathmines A are looking like they have survived as they have the easier run in.

Inchicore A, Celbridge, Phibsboro and Malahide are playing for pride and building for next year.
